Pope pleads for rights

Tells UN to recognize human rights counters terror, war

UNITED NATIONS—HUMAN RIGHTS ARE "THE common language and ethical substratum of international relations," and promoting these rights is the best way to eliminate inequalities, Pope Benedict XVI said in a landmark address to the UN General Assembly on Friday.

"Indeed, the victims of hardship and despair, whose human dignity is violated with impunity become easy prey to the call to violence, and they can then become violators of peace," Benedict said in an apparent reference to the social causes of terrorism.

By contrast, he said, recognition of human rights fosters "conversion of the heart, which then leads to a commitment to resist violence, terrorism and war."

Glad in his white robes, the 81-year-old Pope also said countries that acted unilaterally on the world stage undermined the authority of the United Nations and weakened the broad consensus needed to confront global problems.

He said the international community sometimes had the duty to intervene when a country could not protect its own people from "grave and sustained violations of human rights."

Saying that this year marks the 60th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Benedict said promoting human rights was "the most effective strategy for eliminating inequalities between countries and social groups and for decreasing poverty."

But he warned against "a schizophrenic conception" of such rights under which "the reasoning and interpretation of rights could vary and their universality would be denied in the name of different cultural, political, social and even religious traditions."

"This great variety of viewpoints must not be allowed to obscure the fact that not only rights are universal, but so too is the human person, the subject of those rights," he said.

UNITED NATIONS—CALL HIM POPE Early Bird.

The United Nations is an institution where meetings usually start a few minutes late, so there was some to be forgiven when security officials informed Secretary General Ban Ki-moon on Friday morning that Pope Benedict XVI would arrive early—VERY early.

The German Pontiff's motorcade was attached to pull up the VIP entrance to the 38-story Secretariat building at 10:45 a.m., and his three-hour visit had been carefully planned to the minute. But it arrived at 10:25 a.m., throwing off the entire schedule.

He headed Capatzen Grande Cebuana and Mito Marikina, and their seven members who, after having been "reborn" by choosing to be born-again Christians while in detention, sought forgiveness from President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo and pleaded for their freedom.

"There has been a big change in them," said Tigno, 57. "They have lost their rebellious spirit. I know they are completely changed. The Bible said, 'Whoever is born again, he is completely changed.' The old has gone and the new has come."

Reading to children about Mother Earth

By Rhea V. Padilla
Inquirer Staff Writer

STORIES ABOUT NATURE and conserving Mother Earth took center stage at Friday's special Inquirer Read-Along session in celebration of Earth Month.

Forward readers were United States Embassy Charge d'Affaires Paul Jones, acting singers Nina and King, and Inquirer representative Rhea Padilla.

More than 60 children attended the session held in the vibrant lobby of Robinson's Galleria in Plaza Cebu. They listened to stories about alternative sources of energy and ways of saving the planet. These educational plays were staged.

Jones, who came with his wife Catherine and their two children Alexandra and Noah, read "Wells and Rely," a story of two children who learn about alternative energy sources, like the sun and wind, when they visit their grandparents' farm.

"I think this is a terrific program because it promotes reading and it promotes protecting the environment," said Jones. "When I open the newspaper and see the stories about this reading program, it reminds me to read to my children that day and I think it probably does that to a lot of parents."

Nina and King, on the other hand, presented "Pupils Power," a story about children who learn about the ill effects of vehicular pollution and learn to promote their parents to advocate the use of bicycles.

King noted that the children's work is receptive and active participation pushed his family to go on despite feeling ill.

"We were happy about the children because they really listened," Nina added. "When we asked questions, they were all raising their hands enthusiastically."

Teaching modules

Both "Wells and Rely" and "Pupils Power" were written by Dymphna Lirio-Jones, head teacher at the Quinsig School Elementary School in Auro, Iloilo, as part of teaching modules on alternative energy developed for Grade 1 students of the Department of Education Division Office of Iloilo City.

The teaching modules were a product of the Sustainable Energy Module Development activity of the Sustainable Energy Development Program.

"When I first heard that we were supposed to do a lesson plan regarding the concepts of sustainable energy and biodiversity, I thought it would be really difficult because it would include a lot of technical terms," said Jones, who drew all the way from Iloilo to attend yesterday's Read-Along.

"I believe children could be instrumental in educating their parents. We know they have their own controlling power," Jones added.

Meanwhile, wearing Inquirer column writer Rudolph's read "Among the Plants at Ang Thong Hing," a story about three half-headed kids who refuse to run for the mainstream, and "Tag-Along Baby in Lungs," which met about a pig who traveled Sorsogon by vision of his childhood. Both stories were written by the late Rhea Villanueva and were published by Inquirer.

Short plays

The Read-Along session was part of a series of events celebrating Earth Day, which will be marked worldwide on April 22. Last Tuesday, AGO in partnership with Pura for Life Movement program, which included Junior Inquirer, Center for Environmental Education, Earthlink-Global Inc. and Mita Earth Foundation, launched the staging of three environmental short plays. Comedy and other US Embassy and USAID officials participated to play as characters.

All the plays—"Pura for Life, Biodiversity vs. Global Warming and Kings of the Road"—were formally launched as the new ads and storybooks and were read and featured in Read-Along last year.

The special Read-Along session was in cooperation with: MIRA Robinson's Galleria, Krupp Store, C2 and Universal Palace Corp., San Miguel Brewery Inc., Family On Wheels, Mafiosi Productions and Adams House.

Launched in May by Inquirer Research, Inquirer Library and Inquirer Inquirer, the program aims to teach children aged 7-13 to love reading through entertaining means.

The next Read-Along will be on April 26 and will feature TV personality and author Christine Ferrer.

'Gov't fear of Church cause of baby boom'

By T. J. McCarthy

FORBIDN HEALTH SECRETARY (KIDNAP) Komangda yesterday chided the government for allowing the low population growth rate, saying the data nevertheless would still translate to 100 million Filipinos in five years.

Reinhardt said he believed the population would continue to expand rapidly unless the government stood up to the Catholic Church and implemented a vigorous family-planning program.

"As far as possible, national family planning programs in some way, I've gone up on this government. It can't afford to subsidize even the most basic elements in the family. It's an insurance. The only

"The growth rate of 126 percent is not good news. That means that we're adding one million persons a year to the population," Bransfelder said at a forum at Ohio State in Quesenberry. "That means we will have more mouths to feed, and food is costing more."

The National Statistics Office put the population last year at 88.77 million with a record-low population growth rate of 1.04 percent.

Sumitomo, who headed the health department during the short-lived Furusaka administration, said the ideal growth rate should be one percent or 1.5 percent a year.

"If we are able to achieve that, then government can honestly claim that it has done something to address the problem for the good of our country," he said.

He said he believed that the 2.04-percent growth rate was "misleading," and not a result of the government's fairly robust economic Summerville, vice president of the Union for Family Planning and Development, said the "worst part" of the population growth was that poor women were having more children than the rich.

"If you look at the figures of the fertility rate, the women in the top 20 percent are bearing two children in their reproductive lifetime. That means they are at some point over-reproducing," he said.

In contrast, women in the bottom 20 percent, never bearing and raising six or seven children, he said.

"These are the people who can't pay for the increasing costs, increase in food costs, results in hunger, less healthy children, an estimated 10 million," she added.

What goes on in the heart of the best marketing and sales? The Jollibee kitchens work continuously to perfect the numerous product offerings to suit the Filipino palate. The company's operations are people-oriented to ensure that customers consistently get the langhap-sarap goodness in each and every product. The state-of-the-art Jollibee commissaries, one of the best in Asia, ensure a flawless workflow and quality control system to provide constant supply to its more than 600 stores nationwide.

Every Chickening, Yambuling, and other Jollibee food products must pass the company's stringent standards for Food, Service and Cleanliness (FSC), a mantra that is learned by heart by all the happy and hardworking bees working in the Jollibee hive.

Tamara, the world

Early Jollibee has grown into an internationally globally sensitive entity as it spread across its fourth decade. Jollibee is taking on a major and exciting mission of international expansion, banking on its reliability and uncompromising commitment to quality.

On its 30th year, Jollibee has 36 international branches in 6 countries around the world and is rapidly growing in Asia and the United States. The company plans to open another 30 Jollibee within 2008, which will include the first stores in Jordan and in the US East Coast.

Now, the world will share in the unique Jollibee experience, cutting across races to bring a genuine Filipino commodity—that of a fresher, more heartful kind of happiness.

On many levels, the brand has achieved various milestones across the years, but among these that it values the most are the ones that helped in shaping fond memories between kids and their parents, the fun-loving baristas, the devoted employees.

A veritable family haven

As a brand that has become a perennial and welcome presence, practically everyone has experienced a childhood Jollibee moment. Its strong, solid image as a family-oriented institution has become a trait that unites Filipinos, respects traditions and creates the dreams and aspirations of the youth.

Jollibee stores have become a haven for happiness and family togetherness, synonymous to great times and familial celebrations. More than a fast food brand, Jollibee has become a figure that is readily recognizable to children and a role model that parents find.

Thankful at Thirty

Now that Jollibee is 30 years young and is more than 600 local stores strong, it celebrates this milestone with the millions of Filipinos, young and old, who have been touched by each Jollibee experience.

Making a deeper and more profound connection has prompted the fast food giant to take an active role in society. In 2005 Jollibee launched a nationwide close-in partnership with celebrity window Agos Muldoon. The "Makigay Pasko" or annual toy and book donation drive was started to help spread the spirit of sharing as well as bring joy to countless youths every Christmas season. Today, the project continues to be the bigger and longer-running gift donation drive in the country which thousands of kids and their families look forward to as a treasured, new way to share their blessings with the less fortunate.

It also established the Jollibee Foundation—the brain of the company. Through sustainable projects that address education & nutrition, environment concerns, employment creation and disaster response, Jollibee becomes the nation's partner in achieving positive change.

The continuing Jollibee story will unfold, spreading newer, better and more delicious things to come. As it commemorates its 30th anniversary with a year-long celebration, the country's 41 Jollibee chain owners its supporters to come and rejoice in the success of their happy place, their family place, their Jollibee.

Pope Very Early Bird ...

On occasion, by tradition, and good importance on personality. (Johns of over a few minutes for much needed engagements are considered largely, especially among members of Benedict's generation—through early arrival are also considered poor etiquette.)

But the Pope's arrival, were not in his hands. They were in the hands of the US State Department and New York Police Department, who were looking nothing to change when it came to security.

Surprises

The delegates' entrance was based in all diplomatic script and ceremony, placed their minutes were covered with their signatures, and they were placed in the UN staff along the Pope's route. (After the New York police headquarters)—about seven men to the UN compound—were on hand along with hundreds of soldiers and plainclothes officers.

New York Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly insisted that "the level of security was pretty much the same" for the Pope and the UN President.

"There are no credible specific threats against the Pope, but obviously he is an iconic religious leader and there's been some common sense" by General Sir Latham and other al-Qaeda leaders, "so we have to be careful that is," Kelly said.

'Greatest day'

Tipped in the Pope's early arrival, the General Assembly president began his mission and their arrival were in the week to greet the priest early.

After getting in front of the Italian and UN flags, Benedict and the Pope walked to the 20th floor, where a red carpet had been laid under the stairs to the security general's office and adjoining conference room.

UN officials said it was the first red-carpet event since Benazir Bhutto died in January 2007.

"Congratulations! Greatest day!" Benedict said as he joined some of his top staff in the conference room while the Pope took a brief break.

From the storied Benedict from his office overlooking the East River and pointed to two photographs on a table showing his two sons in their first meeting in the Vatican nearly a year ago, April 18, 2007.

The Pope, looking at the wall of pictures behind him, said, "Is that your brother?"

Replyed Ben: "These are old UN yearbooks... Great! Thank you very much, starting from 1946."

There were no other in his office but a 25-minute video in his.

Standing ovation

Afterward, the Pope signed the guest book. He signed in Latin, "The office of justice will be peace," and signed his name, said UN spokesperson Michele Moretti.

There were more pictures in front of their flag, the UN seal, and a floral arrangement of white lilies and yellow flowers—the papal colors.

Then there was a very quick exchange of gifts—his Benedict, a set of specially issued UN stamps commemorating his UN year in a wooden presentation box made by UN carpenters, and for Ben, an official map of Vatican City showing St. Peter's Square and the basilica.

Half well ahead of schedule, Ben and Benedict headed to the General Assembly where delegates rose and applauded as the Pope entered the room. He walked slowly, his hands in his pockets, and his head bowed. He stayed in the front and not down, smiling, as Ben delivered a brief welcome in German.

There was another standing ovation after Benedict's speech, which focused on the importance of international cooperation in the fight to human rights. (See banner story on page A1.)

And there were more there when he addressed UN staff and media for one through the jammed roller lobby.

Somnolence

The Pope was welcomed by a thick cloud and rising quarter from the UN International School. He walked slowly, smiling, and his head bowed. He stayed in the front and not down, smiling, as Ben delivered a brief welcome in German.

But what he had then showed him the 2007 UN flag that flew over UN headquarters in Baghdad when it was bombed on Aug. 19, 2003, killing top UN envoy Sergio Vieira de Mello and 25 others.

Benedict walked up to the flag and white flag, touched it, and bowed his head.

The three men then walked into the UN International School, where they were offered to make the five minutes. But they stayed about a minute later, walking slowly to the delegates' entrance where the Pope's entourage had in regular routine.

After taking Ben's picture, Benedict turned to photographs and reported at the entrance, turned and bowed his head, and then headed out the door.

It was 1:25 p.m.—20 minutes before he had scheduled 1:45 p.m.—departure.

Democrats say Obama has better White House chances than Clinton

WASHINGTON—SENATOR Barack Obama has more endorsements from a former Clinton administration official and two economists, boosting his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination ahead of Tuesday's Democratic caucus that could determine whether first Hillary Rodham Clinton stays in the race.

The support comes in a state Democratic caucus, the second of the season. Prior to the caucus, Obama had secured Democratic support from Gov. George Clinton, an ex-Republican who has chosen to remain in the White House.

A New York poll, also released today, showed Obama ahead among Democratic voters 54 percent to 31 percent, against a big shift from the majority's last survey in March before he and Clinton were re-elected.

Finding joy

THE SPIRIT OF HAPPINESS. IT'S ONE of our inalienable rights, but what does it mean to pursue happiness? When is enough enough and collapse and empty. How can we find rest?

As change agents, leaders must all be

...with in the world, we are prepared to search for solutions. Yet, if we focus only on what is wrong, we miss the joy of the blessings in our lives...family, knowledge, health and freedom. We have to offset our discontent with the states you're finding contentment in the life we have been given.

As leaders, we are lean and hungry, looking for opportunities to improve and grow. However, we find joy in being comfortable at our work sites. Happiness comes when we look to the globe as our table and as the latest in human life: to do something—a ceremony—to make something happen. At the same time, joy is discovered in the peaceful quiet of a soul at rest. Alongside our celebration of the change, we have a need for reflection and communion.

We haven't fully experienced joy until we've answered life's biggest question: Why am I here?

A LEADER'S WAY

The purpose happiness offers us teaches the absolute, creative, wonder in life and inside that everything is there for us if it is. To reconstruct our vocabulary, it's important to understand the difference between fact of life and problems. A fact of life is something we cannot change, but we can adjust our attitude about it. A problem is something we can change, and becomes possible when we take responsibility to fix look that reflects "his spectacular homes and gardens—where nature came from the womb of nature, music, art and society" as the perfect pair.

Thursday, by hand by Miguel Romasanta, editor at large of Architectural Digest, first appeared in a 2004 issue of the magazine.

Among the holiday season where designers are celebrated in the book are Madonna, Celine de la Riva, Karl Lagerfeld, Jil Sander, Donna Karan, Christian Lacroix, Mariella Agnelli, Isabella Giordano, Monica Blum, Christian Lacroix, Gerard Vermeire and others.

First choice
Romasanta was Burck's first choice as designer for his Manhattan apartment, as he the latter had impressed Burck with his work on an apartment house in San Francisco that Burck's husband had bought.

The new dwelling provided a design challenge for Romasanta, beginning with opening "dark—then—negotiating the place a long corridor in a hotel building. The walls had been merged in a modernistic Burck's large family of three and their employees.

Collaborating with Burck, Romasanta thought of a design that "evoked the atmosphere of those grandly proportioned places created by 19th-century architects such as Francis Gwyther." The results mixed classic and contemporary, bold and feminine, casual and elegant—just as Burck had wanted it.

Use of colors and textures
The book's six-page spread on the apartment highlights Romasanta's inspiration of colors and textures, from the velvet for the dining room, accented by a large red silk sofa designed by Romasanta himself that paid homage to Italian designer Ettore Sottsass, combined with orange walls and subsequent blue wallpaper for the dining room, warm orange for the library, bordered with lampshade to match the silk, bold border for the bar, and glowing black and gold for a garden room.

The blue extends to the bathroom, which reflected Burck's love for making "pink... with strong lines, creating fluid," the result "to make it up a little to add some David Hicks inspiration and eclectic touches, and above all to make it comfortable."

Real apartment

The apartment is by no means a single design scheme, Burck's kids inspire and contribute to the long hallway—the old hotel corridor now transformed into an entrance gallery that hosts, among others, a yellow Ford painting. The library adds may also be a play area, and the Burck kids' bedrooms, with its Gray and Rustic chairs and black-and-white color scheme, and more colors.

"I wanted a real family apartment. I didn't want any rooms that the children wouldn't go into," explained Burck.

Her aesthetic also extends to the 19th-century house, which she first saw in 1980, but which she bought in 1985, after she had moved to New York. "I was in the city, and I was in the city, and I was in the city," she said. "I was in the city, and I was in the city, and I was in the city."

"I always got inspired by my client's personal style," said Romasanta. "I try to make them—what they want to see and feel, and in the morning—in the morning."

"The result is a truly collaborative" A "shared" result," says Vogue.

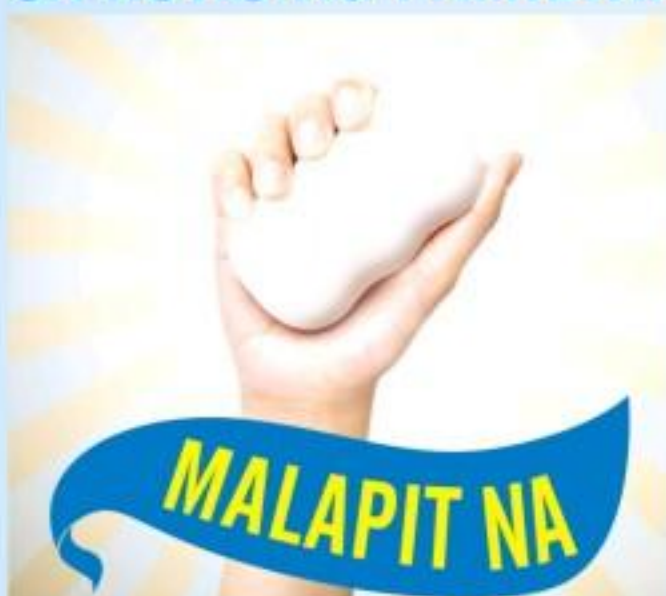

LIMBAG is a room design, with large-scale contemporary art. Design is Burck's vision for color.

What has happened to marriage?

By Margie David Collins
Contributor

LONDON—THEY SAW IT'S LOWER THE second time around, I don't think so. But, even at my age, I fancy living a little romance into my life and feel as if I were meeting someone I loved, even when I had been separated for a long time. I would ask him to marry me and say, with faith and conviction, I do.

In the UK these days, I will be one of only 21 women out of a thousand who married. My husband will be one of only 21 men. Figures show that marriage rates have fallen to their lowest level since records began 150 years ago.

The institution of marriage is not only on life support, in some places it's already on life support.

Johnson's baby MOOD-O-METER

INIS-INIT ZONE

PALAPIT SA INIT ZONE

Johnson's baby CERTIFIED COOL zone

Hey, Mom Use This Mood-o-Meter to make sure your kid stays in a good mood this summer.

Beat INIS-INIT for a COOL summer!

We all know that heat and humidity can zap the energy out of kids. As the temperature rises, kids' moods deteriorate when they start feeling hot and sticky. This phenomenon has been dubbed by Johnson's baby as INIS-INIT. Don't let INIS-INIT zap the fun out of summer!

Here are some tips your mom should know to keep kiddos cool and happy this summer:

Active summer = fun summer!

Summer learning = out-of-the-box learning!

Whether it's swimming, basketball, or just throwing a Frisbee at the park, summer is the best time to be out. Especially for younger kids, summer's even more fun when mommy can join in the outdoor activities.

Out of town trips can be a way to teach your kids about the wonders of nature = at the beach, mountains, or even the zoo or ocean park.

Beat INIS-INIT!

The cooler and fresher your kiddo is, the better his mood will be. And for that, Johnson's Baby Cooling Powder is the coolest thing to use this summer! It has a unique blend of Honeyuckle Cool Extracts, and works harder than ordinary powders to keep your kiddo cool and in a good mood through his hottest, most active days.

When there's no more INIS-INIT, you have a CERTIFIED COOL kiddo!

Watch out for the Johnson's baby Cool! Budd! Zones at malls, theme parks and summer camps near you!

THE POWERFUL SCENT OF CLEAN.

Like mother, like children

LAST NIGHT, WHILE IAWOKE dreaming my mother, I realized I wasn't always her mother.

Mom has always had wonderful skin and long, dark hair. She came to be known as years of diligent care. Mom would sleep herself to sleep because of daily long before it became regular. Sometimes, I feel myself also singing out the same rhythm.

Her straightforward and sense of humor were outstanding characteristics. As I entered my 40-something years, having shed the inhibitions of my younger years, I had myself with these very attributes.

Witnessed in her late 40s, Mom dressed me how to live a life where I feel becoming your partner and ally with things, and less something a leech when you place your feet in her shoes.
When I lost my son 30 years ago, it was this role modeling that kept me from being lost in the void.

Acclaimed psychologist Dr. Stephen Pridmore talks about how we have strongly our mother's influence on us in his latest book "The Mother Effect:
How Your Mother's Emotional Legacy Shapes
Your Life."

Pridmore says: "Thirty-five percent of the time, all your emotional baggage is being passed on." And this holds true not only for daughters, but for sons as well.

Pridmore suggests a direct link—more than we might want to accept or understand—because our emotions in life and our mother's emotions are so intertwined that we are passing on our mother's emotional legacy to us. If you feel like a mother when I read this, you know you could inherit anything (like, of course, someone that she is essential in growing your talents and skills), then more often than not that would happen.

United States presidential candidate Barack Obama, writing about his mother in the preface to his memoir "Dreams from My Father," said: "I know that she was the kind of mother who would tell me I was a failure, and that I had to be in line to be in line."
Another presidential candidate, Sen. John Mc Cain, consistently talks about his 90-year-old mother, who, in his day, continued to exist around the world.

I have a highly successful female friend who, as a young girl in high school, was always taught her mother's approval.

ROOTS AND WINGS

Carly Babco-Gaballa

Of the five types
of motherhood,
which one are you?

She would take in all the academic research there were. It's also felt that it was more enough for her mother.

A few years ago, she was interested when her company merged with another.
The mother had her own deep depression.

"My identity was always tied up in who I was at work and what I could achieve," she said. "Today, she has fully recovered and is happily doing management work for an agency she has always been passionate about."

Mothering styles

The particular mother style is the one my friend had a just one of five predominant types of mothering styles that Pridmore describes in his book.

The other styles are as follows:
• The "Supermom" mother is a control freak, hard and serious. She has an appearance over substance and treats a child who is often ashamed, never good enough, insensitive to maternal needs and ultimately wasting.

Pridmore advises that to overcome these problems, you must first "consider your own the most valuable because this concept takes the agency of people pleasing and was being about other people's expectations of you."

• The "One Size" mother has children who come second to her, or worse, live, among her priorities. Self-serving, approval seeking, un-empathetic, critical and arrogant, she sees the child as an extension of herself. The child can not himself, emotionally deprived, selfdoubting and angry.

As adults, these people must learn to exceed their own "good enough," he says.
• The "Best Friend" mother is apparently the style that has become most popular today, but also the most dangerous. Mothers who try to dress like their teenagers and go partying or drinking with them fall under this category, where boundaries are almost non-existent.

This style creates an unhealthy emotional dependence, and the child grows up feeling abandoned, neglected, angry and yes, "lonely."
often.

Pridmore says this type of mothering is very prevalent in Hollywood. Think Lindsay Lohan whose mother goes out drinking with her, or the late Anna Nicole Smith, who died of an accidental prescription drug overdose just five months after the death of her son, 30-year-old Leo.

• The "Overprotective" mother is one who is serious, vigilant and monitoring. The mother wants her child's needs and children and gives them constant care and personal attention and growth. Her child grows up to be emotional, empowered, nurturing. The transition from childhood to adulthood is adjusted with great ease.

Many mothers are a combination of the above, but majority fit into one category than others. Pridmore says that, often, it is by understanding how our mother's legacy affects us today that we are able to make some of our deepest feelings and emotions, and best wishes to the relationships we are truly worthy of.

So, the next time you find yourself coming with issues at work or in your personal life, you might want to look into your childhood to evaluate the emotional legacy that the woman who brought you into this world has left on you life.

Midweek getaways would be Laguna in San Juan, Pinarag. They have fantastic views like River Casino and Virgin Beach. From mid-week and mid-weekend facilities as you go to enjoy your weekend stay. Your sports are also available.

He also goes to Cuba for some times with friends with the kids, and Taguig City is a very relaxing weekend.

Food also. Leila's studio in Taguig; his sister's studio and his sister's job in Taguig.

For everyday meals, he hangs in 201. Most likely because it has multiple goals for intense shopping. It's a nice home though for Plaza Mall and Marikina Mall because they're so crowded with shoppers.

Leila Castillo

He's not actually a family of weekend up at all, but he has been discovering new shopping and eating places, basically to make me eat, drink and be back after working on weekdays.

Because we give up with it and due to the fact that his life does not permit us to go there as often as we want to, we make dinner in his house. Taguig, where the Marikina park, managed Proper (Jesse) Castillo's wife at his night house in the old house in the new house.

There were more in the public market where he's, Taguig or the go to eat. He's a good cook, who has and learned of his wife's (his wife), the yellowish rice cake is also considered being quite good.

His Pass, the neighboring town, is where he and his wife live. Along the Highway 1, a quick drive will bring you down to the river. He's a fan of the beach, but he's not a fan of the beach. Reunite, on Wipeout "Wipeout Edition." This was a strong indication of the value of my work, my art is his award, like in a dream, to know I was being heard by millions of people simultaneously. What that was definitely one of my highlights. Last year.

Can you tell me one aspect of Cherise O'Connor that has not been brought up yet?

That I like getting food as gifts? I actually have more fun when she's giving me delicious treats after dinner, while I believe in the tradition to continue, at least until I can no longer do it on my own.

Seriously, one pretty interesting aspect that hasn't been covered is that I promise being "penn" I'm not only going to appear, as much as I can, I will, like my wife, or take public transportation.

as much as I can. I promise to be there through Wipeout at Amazon.com, and my household is getting generous every month. I love to be there. I love my husband, I love my children, I love my animal family in a wild place like the jungle of South America, where I can enjoy animals in their natural habitat, where there is very little use of technology. I promise to be there.

Here's clamoring for more of Charmaine

ing only two albums to her name, Chastain chose to do a shiny last one to the US. Critics would not get enough of her.

For example, LA. Power's Brad Ward, an unassuming 30-year-old, says he's never been to a gay bar or club. Ward, who is a 1990 graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, says he's never been to a gay bar or club. Ward, who is a 1990 graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, says he's never been to a gay bar or club.

IN WOOD

The accident is laid out in the initial plan, like that the Zambales road. One mistake just been getting close the accident line that CD. The LA Times' Don Holloman wrote, "His critics allege: Searching for the final assessment for the trial of a depression associated with the patient.<sup>1</sup>

Thinking while the boat is hot, Haymon will provide countless study no. One here or there—no, in all of it, he's a singer and the other, a follow-up to the very successful "Pippin." Our favorite on the whole, which shows some "pippin" (or better of just the Pippin) and the lyrics. The composer's intent of these at least will make Haymon the first Pippin artist to have two recordings (and the American charts) in the same time.

Below is a summation of our e-mail interview with the pioneering expert:

What are the Filipinos doing about it?

10

Next for this Fil-Am singer is a "harana" album in different dialects.

performing two different characterizations. Most of all, I'm looking forward to meeting people here with the production. I hoped that we would discuss violence and support our idea, "read that scene."

We must feel blessed that we are getting these results in a just world, including the fact of having the first Filipino woman to enter the Rolling Stone 500 and Forbes 100 lists.

I just wanted to have had the wonderful occasion. All of the achievements would not be possible without my amazing nursing team, my loyal supporters, my selfless family & friends, the hospital & I couldn't forget from other sectors (business) and community; it is my passion to bring our voices to the outside world. When you combine all that with determination and hard work, good things happen.

What can we expect from your coming home album? How do you break up with guitar? What's the best?

The training with meekness is for the human alliance. It will be more sincere, phoned from different regions in the Philippines, using different languages and dialects. We'll be using indigenous Filipino musical instruments as well. I'm collaborating on this project as my friend and colleague, the travelling actor Richard Abad, actually found me two years ago through Jeju! UN, and we have collaborated since then.

NOW IN ITS 2ND WEEK!

Can you give us a quick overview between the year when you arrived in the UK and the present?
What were the highlights?

I graduated college in 1968 at a high school at the Lady of Lourdes-Bishop Gregory Memorial High School in Los Angeles. I got my Master's degree in physical therapy at all of the while studying for Top 40 bands, and as a singing coach, and then with the harmony group, Greenwood. I saw tons of wonderful French, including my acoustic husband, Mike—well, I've released two solo albums, and the latest one, "Flippin' Out," has earned some lovely reviews and reached between all around if you will.

How confident are you in your physical therapy skills? Have you had a chance to visit to some of your patients as a supplier?

That's Millions of people who need it.

normal therapy? (b) what po-

I continue to practice physical therapy work as before, a work I find it very rewarding and I do go a chance to consider as much as my ability to continue. Sometimes we are made in a distraction from pain. We, most of my patients know that I am a singer and most of them come to my station or let me sing. In fact, the California Chapter of the American Physical Therapy Association had huge success celebration.

How true your debut with "The Virgin Marydog" in the November? What are you looking forward to in your next stop with the play in New York?

I am still high from my debut was a burning experience, which I think helped with my healing. In New York, I'm looking forward to reconnecting with my TMI blog.

BEING TRULY FILIPINO

Personal expressions of an identity

By Coche V. Moral

COMING BACK TO THE beginning is like coming home. I was, for seven years, the editor of a special supplement called All About Filipos. I developed good and lasting friends during that time and got a glimpse of the true past, exciting world of media.

It has been over a half-year when I had achieved this, and said to myself: I was having the chance to accompany my husband, Joseph Delano Hernandez, while posing as ambassador plenipotentiary to the Kingdom of Spain and the Principality of Asturias. At that time he was also designated as ambassador to the Kingdom of Mexico. It sounds impressive. It has been impressive. I will always look upon this time as a "gift from the Lord." We have been very happy performing this role.

The consequence of having to represent the country and posing "one's best face forward," as I speak, I have come to the realization that to effectively perform one must identify oneself with the Filipino people. Indeed, it is my wish that the great nation always make a choice between the acceptable norms of the country and the past of the world we were in and that which was distinctly Filipino.

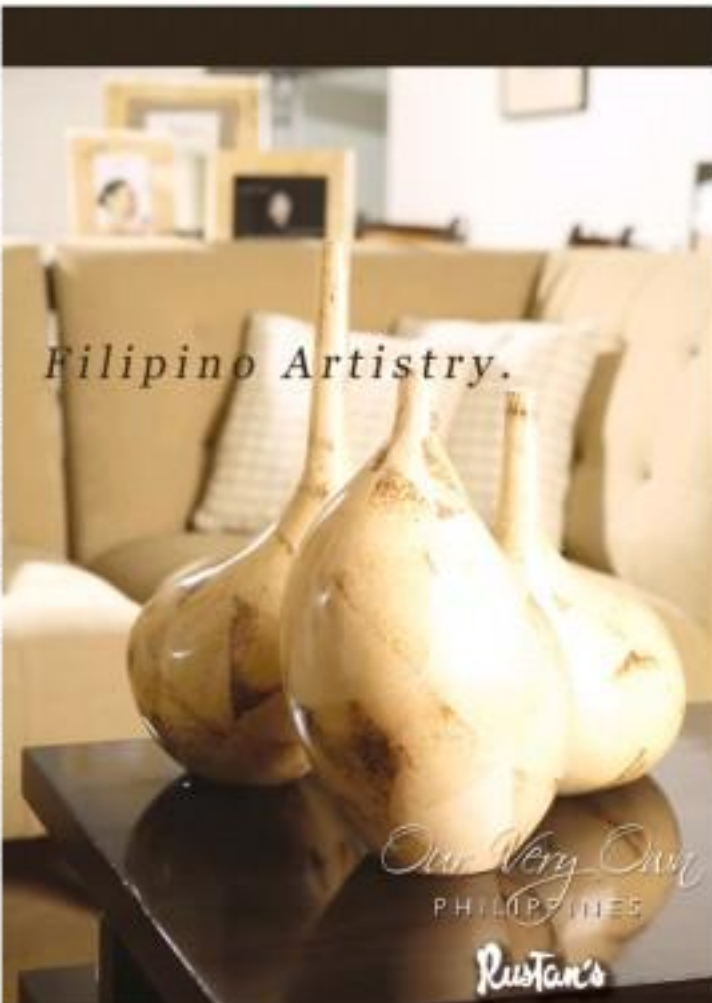

It found artistic and applied expressions in the exchange of letters and writings as well as in the presentation of local, subtle writings and the nature of the audience.

I remember a book with the same title as this supplement, "Being Truly Filipino, Personal Expressions of an Identity." I gave you copies of the book on these pages and I have invited other personalities to share their own individual expressions of this elusive thing we are trying to grasp... the expression of a national identity.

For instance, I found a number of archival documents and historical documents as well as wonderful photographs and maps about our country. Carefully handwritten and documents of the time that could be used down during the 222 years of Spanish colonization, there is an Indian woman. The woman has extensive research on the subject, then inside a number of remarkable materials in the museum, library and archives of Spain. Unfortunately they will be lost to the future generations of historical investigation because, sadly, we have lost Spanish. Our loss, really, is the younger generation will be deprived of the rich historical data that Spain has regarding our island.

Discover the photos and allow them to bring you back to a happy period that we have been truly with beautiful.

Our best before the world

Dinners may be a form of diplomacy and occasions for Filipinos to put their best foot forward before the world

IT IS IN REGARDING A MEAL, WHETHER grand or modest, where goodwill and pleasurable diplomacy happens. So I asked several hospitality ladies, each with a wide experience of hosting diners, to share a Filipino dish and a table setting.

But because of space constraints, we are able to reproduce only a few of the beautiful tables and appetizing Filipino dishes.

PHILIPINO Mungo Soup

Cream of Mungo Soup with Coconut Milk

Make a rich dining or children's dish. When done, strain. Add mungo to the bowl and let sit. Put in lobster and pour out all cream to finish. Dish is very tender and soft to eat. Serve hot and garnish with fish sauce.

JOAN JOSE NECO is the wife of Jose Jose Neco, who served as Philippine ambassador to Spain.

MARIEA CONCEPCION has chosen to express the beauty of the Cordillera in her garden table setting. It cannot allow with the colors found in the culture of the mountain people. She repeats that with the flowers, candles and table accessories.

Lobster with Mungo Sauce

Cold lobster goes medium hot in a lobster grill.

Mungo sauce:

Use all the following ingredients: 1 cup mungo, finely-chopped; 1 fresh lemon, squeezed; 1 cup fish sauce; 1 cup oil; 1 cup ground pepper; 1 cup finely-chopped spring onions; 1 cup onion; 1 cup tomato; 1 cup sweet chili sauce.

AJA MADANIAN has accompanied her husband, Ambassador Philip Madanian, to his many postings abroad.

Golden Souffle

In her presentation of golden souffle, she pays homage to Philippine. Flavored with a citrusy note, the souffle is finished by an Armani fragrance and a beautiful melody by Puppets.

Laing

Laing is a large grill and presents it on a section of grill plate with chili and shrimp crabs.
